It is well known that the rapid growth of the Chinese economy in the recent decades initially started from the rural reform in 1978 and, in turn, has resulted in significant economic and societal changes in the vast China rural areas. As the rural areas account for more than half of the population in China, getting the economy right in the rural areas remains a critical part of China development in both present and future times. In this presentation, you will learn from our speaker, Dr. Li Guorong, in detail about the banking system and financial reform in China’s rural areas, as well as its development outlook.
